Washington Correspondence. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18, 1862.

Editor Nashville Union: DEAR SIR: Your readers would doubtless like to hear from this region. Congress is progressing slowly with the business. As usual the everlasting negro has more attention than all the white men in the nation. The conservatives are struggling hard against the wicked purposes, of Abolitionists and Secessionists, both bitter enemies to the Constitution and the Union. How unwise, how suicidal has Secession proven! If the Southern States were represented in Congress the fanatics would have no artions Governor and corrupt Legislature, and who power in Congress, but as they refuse to be represented, there is no telling what will be the result. I will give it as my present firm conviction, that unless the rebels lay down their arms, and that soon, slavery is a doomed institution-its only security is under the Constitution and laws of the United States. The longer the war is protracted the stronger the Abolition party becomes. I have had excellent opportunity to know the sentiments of the army of the Union. I have for the past year visited the camps and have met the soldiers on the streets and hotels, without letting them know that I was a pro-slavery man, or that I lived in a slave State. I have no hesitation in saying that nine-tenths of the army are fighting alone to sustain the flag of the country, and have no disposition to interefere with slavery. There is no incompatibility between slavery and the prosperity of the United States, as a Union, as has been proven by our past national advancement.

The Abolition Secessionists North are now urging the sentiment of --- no more union with slave States. The number of such fanatics is not large, and I mention the fact, that Tennesseens may not be deceived as to their power, but it is just as true that they are gaining strength. These men are as reckless of the provisions of the Constitution as the Secessionists are, and are their natural allies. They are both Secessionists

But the true Unionists, north, especial ally among the people, want "the Constitution as it is and the Union as it was." Under that Constitution, after the rebellion is put down and the government once more firmly united, if any State chooses to abolish slavery, let it do so, and do it gradually. Hore is the issue as it will likely be made at the fall elections. The President, it is believed, will stand by the latter, or rather, the conservative constitutional party will sustain him in all constitutional measures. The ultra Abolitionists, while they profess to sustain Mr. Lincoln, will attempt to send a delegation to Congress who will overrule him and declare their wild abolition scheme as the policy of the country. The President ought to have friends from the South to stand by him in Congress and thus save their property. But if the South still persists in the rebellion it will give the radical Abolitionists at reach and thus save their property. But if the south still persists in the rebellion it will sylve the radical Abolitionists strength. give the radical Abolitionists strength, and the President may yield or be overborne and slavery perish, and the South forever ruined. I write this as my solemn and earnest convictions, as a warning to the people of my native State. If they are not entirely bereft of reason they must see that evil and only evil can come of this monstrous rebellion.

The foregoing is a candid statement of facts, as I understand them, and I have a good opportunity to know them. Angus.
